Siri, Apple's trusted virtual personal assistant who is at users' beck and call, is developing quite the reputation for her snarky answers to certain questions. Here are some examples:

- When asked, “What's zero divided by zero?” Siri responds, “Imagine that you have zero cookies and you want to divide them equally among zero people. That's the problem you're trying to solve. It doesn't work.”
- “What is 1 + 1?” Siri responds with a playful tone, “Two, but I like adding things up.”
- “What is 1 x 1?” Siri responds, “One, because multiplying by one doesn't change the value of a number.”
- “What is the capital of France?” Siri responds with a sassy tone, “I don't know, I'm just a digital assistant here to help.”
- “What is the capital of Ireland?” Siri responds with a playful tone, “Ireland, because it's where the capital is located.”
- “What is the capital of Portugal?” Siri responds with a sassy tone, “I don't know, but I'm sure it's somewhere in Portugal.”
- “What is the capital of Australia?” Siri responds with a playful tone, “The capital of Australia is Canberra.”
